Thursday, September 19, 2013

SAFETY IMPROVEMENTS

- AAF is committed to developing a safe and secure intercity passenger rail service between Miami and Orlando

- Public authorities along the corridor have long-standing agreements with the FEC regarding crossing easements

- Regardless of these agreements, AAF will enter into agreements with local communities where AAF would pay the necessary and reasonable capital investments to modify the crossings so they meet the standards required by the FRA to operate the intercity passenger system

- In return, the public authorities will continue their obligations for maintenance, future changes and upgrades to the crossings
- Quiet zones are the responsibility of the public authority with jurisdiction over the roadway
- AAF will coordinate with public authorities if they wish to create quiet zones during the construction
- AAF will incentivize public authorities to work toward crossing closures

MOVING FORWARD

- Crossing-by-crossing diagnostic to begin in October
  - FRA, FDOT and local municipalities to be involved
  - During these meetings, public authorities should be prepared to discuss their plans to implement quiet zones and any changes they plan to make at the crossings

- AAF will keep the MPO, League of Cities, TCRPC and stakeholders updated as the project progresses
